Things we use

Paul and Emily are in a shop for electrical equipment. The friends want to have a look at different mobile phones.

1. What is important to you when you buy a mobile phone?
Make a pro and contra list.
2. Think about the aspects design and cost.

a) Read the text and answer the questions.

What do you think of when you hear the word high-tech? Televisions? Robots? Shoes? What? You don't think of shoes? Well, think again. This new invention is a pair of shoes with a button which changes the height of the heels¹. A lot of women in New York walk to work in flat shoes and carry an extra pair of shoes with high heels in their bags so that they can change shoes at work. Now they only need one pair of shoes. They can walk to work with the lower heels. Then at the office they press a little button and suddenly they're wearing high heels. The company which is selling the shoes says, "Most women know that flat shoes are much healthier but they think shoes with higher heels look better." Well, what do you want people to say, "Hey, those shoes look really healthy?" or "Wow, they're awesome!"

1. A lot of women in New York take an extra pair of shoes to work with them.
2. The new invention is shoes which can change colour.
3. Most women don't know that high heels are unhealthy.
4. Most women think that higher heels look better.

1 Which home is which?

a) Read the texts in the magazine article.

A Bradley Forster is one of the richest men in Texas. His car is longer than most cars. In fact it's almost as long as a bus. He has three expensive, high-tech homes in the States: in New York, in Texas and in California. They are all intelligent or 'smart' homes.

B "Well, this is my beautiful apartment in Manhattan. It cost five million dollars. It's my oldest high-tech home. I use remote control to fill my bathtub and to operate all the other equipment. If I drip water on the floor, the heating dries it in seconds. There is nothing worse than a blackout. Without electricity nothing works.

C My farm in Texas is bigger and better than most farms there. It is more expensive than my apartment and it is 'smarter'. I can check all the rooms with my cell phone and change the temperature. I can also switch the lights off and on, and open and close doors. If I want to frighten away burglars, I can operate my 'hound'.

D My country home in California is the most expensive. It's not as big as my farm but it's my trendiest home. The equipment here is newer. There are lots of cameras. I can lie in my pool and check the house and garden. I can also check the refrigerator, order a tasty lunch, control the lights and change the movie in my home cinema."

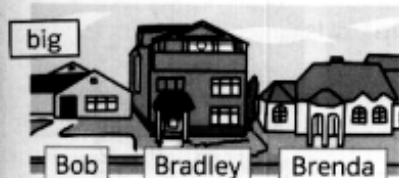

b) Describe what you can see in each picture. Match each with a text.

c) Correct these sentences about Bradley and his homes.

1. Bradley is one of the oldest men in Texas.
2. His farm is even worse than his country home.
3. His most expensive high-tech home is in Manhattan.
4. In a smart home there is nothing better than a blackout.
5. His farm is smaller than his country home.
6. His country home isn't as expensive as his farm in Texas.
